A GUIDE TO REFLECTING ON YOUR DEATH

Draw a straight line in the space below that indicates the span of your life, with hash marks indicating the beginning and the end. Now draw a hash mark along that line that indicates where you believe you are in your life’s chronology.

__________________________________________________________________
__________________________________________________________________
__________________________________________________________________

The death I would least prefer would be

__________________________________________________________________
__________________________________________________________________
__________________________________________________________________

The reason for my choice is

__________________________________________________________________
__________________________________________________________________
__________________________________________________________________